

Putting Your Library Website Into WordPress — Beginner Step-by-Step Guide

This is the simple version. Every page is one paste into one block. No splitting things up, no matching tags across multiple blocks. If you've never used WordPress before, follow this exactly in order.

A few words you'll see a lot:

- Block = a piece of content in the WordPress editor (a paragraph, an image, or in our case, a "Custom HTML" block that holds a whole chunk of code).
 - Custom HTML block = a block where you paste raw code and WordPress displays it exactly as written, without trying to turn it into separate WordPress blocks. This is the one you'll use for everything below.
 - Media Library = WordPress's place for storing your uploaded photos.

Step 1 — Log in and find your way around

Log into your WordPress site (usually `(yoursite.com/wp-admin)`). On the left you'll see a black sidebar with things like Posts, Media, Pages, Appearance, Settings. You'll mainly use Appearance, Media, and Pages.

Step 2 — Confirm your theme

Go to Appearance → Themes. You told me Twenty Twenty-Four is active — that's fine, no changes needed here. Just confirm it shows as "Active."

Step 3 — Add your site's CSS (the styling)

This one block of code is what makes your site look like your site — the colors, fonts, card layouts, all of it.

1. Go to Appearance → Editor.
2. In the left panel of the editor, click Styles.
3. Click the three-dot menu (:) near the top right of the Styles panel.
4. Click Additional CSS. A plain text box will open.
5. Paste this first line:

@import url('https://fonts.googleapis.com/css2?
family=Playfair+Display:ital,wght@0,400;0,700;1,400&family=Source+Sans+3:wght@4
```

6. Right below it, paste the entire contents of the `css/style.css` file from your project folder (open that file, select all, copy, paste here).
7. At the very end, paste this small extra snippet:

css

.wp-block-table.hours-table table { width:100%; border-collapse:collapse; }
.wp-block-table.hours-table td, .wp-block-table.hours-table th { padding:0.45rem; }
.wp-block-table.hours-table tr:last-child td { border-bottom:none; }
```

8. Click Save.

Don't worry if nothing looks different yet — there's no page content built yet, so there's nothing for the styling to apply to.

Step 4 — Upload your photos

1. Go to Media → Add New.
2. Upload these 5 files one at a time, from your project's `images` folder:
 - `library-logo.jpg`
 - `library-exterior.jpg`
 - `library-exterior-sketch.jpg`
 - `andrew_carnegie.jpg`
 - `LibraryPassportLogo-removebg-preview.png`
3. After each upload, click on the file in the Media Library. A panel opens on the right showing details — find File URL (or "Copy URL" / "Copy link") and copy it.
4. Paste each URL into a notes app or document, labeled with the filename, like:

library-logo.jpg → https://yoursite.org/wp-content/uploads/2026/06/library-logo.jpg library-exterior.jpg → https://yoursite.org/wp-content/uploads/2026/06/library-exterior.jpg

You'll need these 5 URLs in the steps below.

Skip the `.avif` Carnegie photo — it's a licensed stock photo. Just use the plain `andrew_carnegie.jpg`.

Step 5 — Build the Header (appears on every page, once)

1. Go to Appearance → Editor.
2. Click Templates (or Patterns → Template Parts, depending on your WordPress version).
3. Find and open Header.
4. Delete whatever's already there.
5. Add a block, search for Custom HTML, and select it.
6. Paste the code below into that block.
7. Before saving, find `LIBRARY-LOGO-URL` in the code and replace it with the logo URL you saved in Step 4.

html

  </nav>
</header>

<script>
  document.documentElement.className += " js"; (function () {
    var toggle = document.querySelector(".nav-toggle");
    var menu = document.getElementById("nav-menu");
    if (toggle && menu) {
      toggle.addEventListener("click", function () { var open = menu.classList.toggle("open");
        toggle.setAttribute("aria-expanded", open ? "true" : "false");
      });
    }
  });
```

```
}
})();
</script>
```

8. Click Save.

Step 6 — Build the Footer (once)

1. Still in Appearance → Editor → Templates (or Template Parts), find Footer.
2. Delete what's there, add a Custom HTML block, paste this in (nothing to replace):

```

```

<footer class="site-footer">

3. Click Save.

Step 7 — Build each page

For every page below, repeat this exact process:

1. Go to Pages → Add New (or open the existing page if you already started one).
2. Type the page title shown (e.g. "Home").
3. Delete any blocks already in the page (WordPress sometimes adds a starter paragraph — click it, click the three dots, Delete).
4. Click the + to add a block, search Custom HTML, select it.
5. Paste in the entire code block shown for that page below.
6. Replace any `SOMETHING-URL` placeholders with the matching photo URL from Step 4.
7. Click Publish (or Update if editing).
8. After publishing, note the page's URL slug (shown near the title, like `/home/` or `/about/`) — you'll want these to eventually match the links in your Header/Footer (`/about/`, `/events/`, etc.). If they don't match, you can edit the slug by clicking on it.

Nothing to replace. To add/remove events later, just edit this block and add/remove a `...` chunk.

Step 8 — Set the homepage

1. Go to Settings → Reading.
 2. Choose "A static page" for "Your homepage displays."
 3. Set Homepage to your Home page.
 4. Click Save Changes.

Step 9 — Final check

1. Visit your site's homepage in a regular browser tab (not the editor) — click View Site or go to your domain directly.
 2. Click through every link in the header menu (Home, Events, Services, Research, About, Policies, Contact) and confirm each one lands on the right page. If a link is broken, it's because that page's URL slug doesn't match what's in the Header code (`/about/`, `/events/`, etc.) — go back to Appearance → Editor → Header, edit the Custom HTML block, and fix the `href` to match the real slug.
 3. Done — your site is live in WordPress.

If something looks broken

If a page shows "This block has encountered an error and cannot be previewed", the most common cause is a typo or a missing closing tag from copy-pasting. Click into the block, look for an "Edit as HTML" or "Convert to HTML" option, and compare it character-by-character against the code block above for that page — especially check that every `` has a matching `` at the end.
